

Trust Kick Start Programme

Money Tree Fundraising

Who are we?

Money Tree Fundraising works with charities to set up and grow fundraising from trusts, companies and wealthy individuals. In 2015 we were named Best Strategic/Fundraising Consultancy by the Institute of Fundraising for our work with grassroots charities. We understand the challenges small charities face with staff retention, capacity, skills.

We are fundraising practitioners as well as consultants. Our expert trust fundraisers have combined experience of all types of charity and have raised more than £20m over their cumulative 60 years' experience.

Why trust fundraising?

UK trusts donated £2.9bn to the charity sector in 2013/14 – an increase of £0.4bn on the previous year. Trusts accounted for the majority rise in voluntary sector income overall for the year.

This is a source of income that can provide large sums for projects, often secured for more than one year, within a short time period. Once set up this is a steady source of income and can offer a return of 10 times your investment. You start to receive grants within six months of starting.

The secrets to successful trusts fundraising

- Knowing who to approach
- Knowing how to package your work into funder-friendly proposals and projects
- Having enough time to dedicate to developing the projects and writing the applications

When you know who to approach, how to create a compelling proposal and you have the capacity to do so, you will raise more money to deliver your organisation's vision.

At Money Tree Fundraising we know trust fundraising; over six years we have worked with dozens of organisations keen to raise more money in order to expand the life-changing work they do. Their trust income grew when we addressed the key problems we encounter with our clients over and over again:

- Not knowing how to find the right trust to approach
- Not knowing how to write compelling proposals
- Not having the time to write the applications

The Trust Fundraising Kick Start programme delivers:

- A list of relevant trusts
- Strong written proposals delivering income¹
- Capacity to kick-start your programme
- New fundraising skills for you and your team

¹ we would expect at least income to the level of your investment within 9 months of the programme but cannot offer any guarantees.

Trust Kick Start

In partnership with you, our tried and tested approach will take you through the five essential stages of a successful trust fundraising programme:

1. Review - we assess where you've come from, what you've done, what has worked (or not) and what you've got.
2. Propose - we package your work into a project with a clear budget, ensuring that you can measure success against pre-set objectives. We ensure that you have all of the supporting documentation, processes and procedures that trusts will need to see.
3. Research - our prospect researcher finds the trusts who set out to support the work that you do.
4. Plan - we prioritise the list of trusts and create an action plan for applications.
5. Apply - we will write the applications, we give you the templates you need to write your own applications in the future and we critique those applications to make sure you are on track.

At the end of the Kick Start programme there will be additional trusts that you can approach, a proposal template and expertly-written applications that you could use as a model for submitting your own applications. We would welcome the opportunity to develop a long term trust application programme with you.

We offer four levels of trust fundraising support through our Kick Start programme.

“CommUNITY Barnet worked with MoneyTree Fundraising to implement a new fundraising coaching service for small charities in Barnet, North London. All the charities worked with reported that they felt they had gained key fundraising skills and they had significantly more confidence in their fundraising practice. At time of writing, three Barnet charities have between them raised £127,500 and all felt that Money Tree Fundraising’s input had been significant in helping them reach their financial goals.”

Case Study

SeeBeyondBorders is a charity working to improve the standard of education in Cambodia through expert coaching and support. They set up a UK charity in order to fundraise in the UK. Following a review, we determined that trust fundraising offered the quickest returns with the lowest risk for the organisation.

Over the next 8 months, Money Tree Fundraising worked with SeeBeyondBorders to set up and develop their trust fundraising. Over that time, working on average 7 days per month, we delivered:

$100,000 UNESCO award secured
33 trust applications submitted to a total value of £80,000
5 grants received to a total value of £19,000
22 decisions still pending (at time of writing)

A further three months was spent ensuring all knowledge and skills was transferred to the team that had established in the UK so that they can maintain the momentum built up in the trust fundraising programme and continue to deliver results with minimal external support.

Here are some of the Money Tree Fundraising team that specialise in trust fundraising:

Adrienne Liron has 15 years' experience in fundraising; she has raised millions of pounds in the international development, health, human rights and arts sectors. She specialises in securing funds from trusts, foundations and major institutional donors. With her strong copy-writing skills, Adrienne is able to distil complex programmes into powerful funding proposals.

Alison Cordingley is an enthusiastic professional with experience of fundraising in a wide range of causes. She has worked in the voluntary sector since 2000 and has extensive experience in trust fundraising across a range of causes. Alison has raised over £1m for the organisations with which she has worked over the past 14 years.

John Harris has worked creatively in support of charities for many years. This includes winning funding for enterprises still thriving: a housing co-operative, a new build community run children's nursery, a community amateur tennis club. He has excellent skills in helping organisations to generate appropriate income and writing effective funding applications.

Laura Ripley has been fundraising since 2010 with medical, sports and children's charities, specialising in trust fundraising.

Karon Phillips is an accomplished fundraiser, coach and trainer. She has nearly 20 years' experience leading voluntary sector organisations; and has run both local and national charities. Karon's particular strength lies in developing strong and successful written proposals for both trusts and the Lottery.

Sarah Parkhouse has over 15 years' success in securing funds to continue or expand existing services, often exceeding targets and delighting her clients or employers. She has experience of fundraising through trusts as well as grants on both sides of the government contract landscape having acted as both a commissioner and commissioned service.
